Dear Dr. Henney:

Just like most Americans, we are interested in the safety of the food we eat. Given the rapid pace of technology in all fields, we feel it is more important than ever to inform the public of any potential or possible risk factors introduced into our food.

We urge you to support prominent food labels indicating if foods have been genetically altered, irradiated, or treated with chemicals or drugs.

Thank you for your attention.

Sincerely,

Kara Naber & Mark Andrews
